HUNK OF GUMBO

Crashes Through Roof of Walnut Street House.

A blast of dynamite in the cut on the L. & N. Railroad near Walnut street was touched off Tuesday morning and instead of spending its force on the stone cleaned out a pocket of what the workmen called "gumbo" a hard sticky clay, and threw great chunks of it all over the immediate vicinity.

One lump of it weighing about 25 pounds crushed through the roof of Mr. J. S. Quarles' house, on Walnut street, going into a bedroom, through ceiling and all and landed on a davenport upon which some of Mrs. Quarles clothing was lying.

The general wreckage included the runing of a handsome dress. The company is under contract to repair all damages to property. A representative of the construction company went at once to the house to express a desire to do all possible to repair the damages from the accident, which he said was due to a circumstance that could not have been foreseen.

TWO SMALL FIRES.

One on Second Street, Other On Jesup Avenue.

Smoke was discovered issuing from a cottage, 624 East Second street, owned by Robert Spurlin, col., and occupied by Lula Robinson, Tuesday morning and an alarm was turned in. The occupant was not at home, but neighbors broke open the door and extinguished the flames before the department arrived. The mantel and ceiling were slightly damaged.

Yesterday morning an alarm was turned in from the residence of John Ricketts, on Jesup Avenue, but the blaze was extinguished in a few minutes and the damage was small.

FROM THE ROOF OF THE WORLD

A Man Comes Down. Dr. Shelton at Ninth Street Christian Church.

PRESIDENT A. MCLEAN

Here--Man After Whom McLean College is Called.

A series of great services will be held tomorrow at the Ninth Street Christian church. President Archibald McLean of the Foreign Christian Missionary Society will be in charge of them. He has been the leader of the Disciples in work for the heathen for more than a quarter of a century. He is a scholarly man, a thinker, a writer of purest and most vigorous English on the greatest themes, a speaker of passionate enthusiasm and splendid power, a great soul. He will be accompanied in his visit here tomorrow by Dr. Shelton, of Tibet, and Rev. Robt. N. Simpson. The former has been for years on the "roof of the world" in the last of the countries which opened its doors to the Gospel. He has a story of matchless interest for every lover of heroism. The latter is a preacher of great parts, an orator and full of the Spirit of evangelistic conquest.

The services of tomorrow will be held at 10 a. m., 2 p. m., and at 6 p. m. There will be a luncheon in the social rooms of the church in honor of President McLean and all visitors. All the men of the Ninth Street church are invited to this function. All men also who may be visitors in the city are invited.

There will be good music during the luncheon. Below is an outline program of the day's meetings. With the exception of the luncheon, which is for men only as just indicated, the services are for everybody, whether men, women or children, and whether members of the Ninth Street Christian church or not.

PROGRAM FOR MISSIONARY RALLS.

The service will open at 10 a. m. President McLean will give Bible study on Missions and will call attention to the maps and charts on the walls. The following will be among the topics discussed:

1. The will of Christ for the World.
2. A Lesson in Bookkeeping.
3. How the Foreign Society Made Good in 1910.
4. The Social Work of Christian Missions.
5. Prayer for Missions.
6. The Practical Workings of the Foreign Society.
7. Missions and Christian Union.

In the afternoon there will be an open parliament on workable plans. The men's supper will be at 6 p. m. There will be short addresses at the table, after which moving pictures and other pictures will be shown.

The Missing Negro.

Following is a description of Will Porter, the negro who is being sought by Graves county authorities, charged with having assaulted Mrs. Nannie Holbrook Sunday night.

About five feet and eight inches in height; weight 163 pounds; very small mustache when last seen; big feet, on which are said to have been a pair of Arctic overshoes; wore a new pair of overalls; had an old overcoat, which had tanned from black, due to long wear; talks loud at all times; was last seen in Mayfield Sunday night as the clock struck 12; originally came from near Paris, Tenn., and has been in the employ of a well known farmer who lives six miles from Mayfield.

All information should be addressed to Chief of Police McNutt, Mayfield, Ky., or the sheriff of Graves county, Kentucky.

The commission to determine the sanity of Ewing Watterson, son of Col. Henry Watterson, who entered a plea of insanity to an indictment for a murder, filed its report that Watterson was insane on July 1st last, when he shot Michael J. Martin at Saugerties, N. Y., and is still insane. The commission recommended that Watterson be confined in the state asylum for the insane.

Card From Dorothy.

New York, Feb. 6.—A postal card, signed "Dorothy" and bearing the message "Father, I am safe," has been received by Francis Arnold, father of Dorothy Arnold, who has been missing since December 12. Mr. Arnold declared to day. The handwriting resembles closely that of the missing heiress, but Mr. Arnold is not sure that it is hers. He fears some one is trying to play a joke on him.

There was no address on the postal card that would furnish a clue to Dorothy's whereabouts, nor was there any date. The card bears a New York City postmark.

Married in Clarksville.

Mr. George Littlefield and Miss Cornelia Darnell, both from Hopkinsville, were married in this city Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Squire Wiley Smith in the parlors of the Arlington Hotel. The bride was apparently of the statutory age that forbids marriage in Kentucky and the couple presumably came here because Clarksville is a good town in which to be married.—Leaf Chronicle.

Children Cry

A Strange Story.

Argyle, Mich.—Mrs. Wm. H. Carson, in a letter from Argyle, says: I was almost wild with pain in my head, and other severe pains, due to womanly troubles. Cardui gave me great relief at once. Further use of Cardui raised me from my bed of agony. Cardui saved my life, and I can't be thankful enough for what it did for me. Whether seriously sick, or simply ailing, take Cardui, the woman's tonic. As a general tonic for women, to improve the appetite and build up the constitution, Cardui is in a class by itself. Those who have used it say it does the work; it relieves, it cures. Try it. Your druggist has it.

Crazy Woman Fined.

Stanford, Ky., Feb. 6.—In the trial in the Lincoln County Court of Mrs. Amanda Harrison, charged with desecrating the grave of George B. Sauley, she pleaded guilty and a jury fixed her fine at $75. She had no attorney and said in her confession that the Lord was her authority for the act and her Saviour was her defense before the court. She wept bitterly and excited some sympathy in this way.

Rowan Sauley, the brother of the man whose grave was desecrated, has caused a writ de lunatico inferendo to be issued and she will be tried on this charge.

Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve Is the best eye remedy ever offered the public. It is a snow white ointment, painless, harmless and absolutely guaranteed to cure. At all dealers. 25c a tube.

New Theory.

Paid a Ghost's Debt.

An amusing story of an old woman's superstition came before Judge Drummond at Balleborough, county Cavan, in the course of an action brought by Miss Anne Brady against a local farmer named Connell.

The plaintiff said that in June last the defendant told her that the ghost of her brother Phil who had been dead 26 years, was haunting her because he forgot to pay defendant 70 shillings he owed him. The witness was frightened and paid the money, which the defendant swore on "the poker and tongs" was due. The defendant said he, after Phil died, walked nine miles to the wake to see if he could get an opportunity of mentioning the debt, but he was not given a chance. He denied having said anything whatever about Phil's ghost. His honor, in giving judgment for the plaintiff, said he firmly believed the story.

All Skin Troubles.

Are overcome by using Dr. Bell's Antiseptic Salve. It is as pleasant to use as pure cream and is guaranteed to give satisfaction. 25c a box.

Bank With Royal Depositors.

The English banking world is congratulating itself upon the receipt of a large and acceptable account. In fact, King Manuel of Portugal has honored the house of Coutts on the Strand with the deposit of his private fortune, and England is so much richer for Manuel's loss. This firm of Coutts is a remarkable establishment, by the way, for it has attracted the patronage of nearly all the royalty which has had occasion to leave money in London. Every English king from George II. to the present George has kept his wealth in their vaults, and Louis Philippe, the shah of Persia and Leopold of Belgium have all patronized the Coutts.

Pert Paragraphs.

Croup.

Causes uneasy nights but if you will use Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey it will relieve in a few minutes. There is nothing better. Guaranteed by all dealers.

Counteracting Lack of Sunshine.

A house built in Brooklyn was designed, as far as could be, to counteract the lack of sunlight, which the house's situation made unavoidable. The chief means for giving the impression of sunshine were yellow tinted walls and amber glass skylights. Monotony in the yellow tones was avoided because the location of each room offered some peculiar problem which was best solved by a tint different from that of the rest of the house. It is said that even on gray days there was enough of the stimulating effect of sunshine to prevent dull spirits, and the effect of the design on the health of the occupants was most beneficial.

Help Wanted.

For that cough. Get a bottle of Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey. It is the best.

Fallacies About Paper.

Chinese rice paper, said Lord Redcliffe in his address before the Royal Photographic society, had no rice whatever in its composition. That curiously brittle, pure white material used for the marvelous drawings of Chinese artists was manufactured from the pith of a tree peculiar to Formosa. His lordship also stated that the first paper was never made of raw cotton. The Chinese did not use it, and history began with the making of rag paper, both in Arabia more than ten centuries ago, and also in Europe when the Crusaders, having brought the industry westward, the first paper manufactory was established in the last years of the thirteenth century.—Westminster Gazette.

Asthma.

Is a distressing disease. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey relieves almost instantly. We guarantee it to give satisfaction.

Literature for Criminals.

Scientific burglary is perhaps practical to a greater extent in America than in England. They have even a literature on the subject which the police find difficult to suppress. And some time ago a huge volume was openly published which elucidated all the latest methods of crime, from robbing a till to blowing up a bank safe.

Most of the copies were seized, and those that remain are nearly as valuable as first folio Shakespeares. On this side of the Atlantic, however, scientific instruction in the criminal art has hitherto been confined to magazine articles, although the present writer knows at least three books that the up-to-date criminals would find exceedingly useful.

One by a celebrated chemist incidentally divulges secrets that would make the fortune of a forger. Another by a well-known lawyer describes an infallible means of proving an alibi; while the third shows the man who is "wanted" how to leave the country by ways never watched by the police.—London Chronicle.

THE MAN IN THE CAR

Roland Hallam was a young man who during his short life had displayed a remarkable faculty for getting what he wanted in the world. As he was one of the favored sons of wealth and society, when he announced to his friend, Bernard, that he had just passed upon the street and become his wife Bernard quietly believed that he would succeed. "But who is she, and where did you meet her, and why didn't you bow to her?" Bernard asked.

"Never met her. Never saw her until yesterday. Didn't bow because she doesn't know me from Adam. But I have found out who she is. Her name is Annette Lindel, daughter of Jason Lindel—the man who made a fortune out of the milk trust."

"Hum!" "You can hum all you want to. The girl is all right and I propose to marry her."

"Of course you can do that. Any girl will stoop to pick up the handkerchief that Roland Hallam, the millionaire, condescends to drop."

That set Roland to thinking. Next day a clean built, neatly dressed young man called upon Jason Lindel with an application to become his chauffeur, and he was accepted on the spot.

"And now for the conventional love drama," murmured Roland, alias George Bronson, chauffeur.

Coincidence with the engagement it was announced that Roland Hallam had gone west for the season.

As the days passed Roland had many chances to present himself in his most attractive light before the lady of his heart. Annette evidently looked upon her chauffeur with something akin to admiration.

Then came a narrow escape for him. As he was standing by the auto, waiting for Miss Lindel, Miss Graham, with whom he, in his proper character as Roland Hallam, had carried on a mild flirtation the previous summer, passed the Lindel residence. He turned quickly to avoid recognition, but was too late.

"Why, Mr. Hallam, I thought you had left the city. I certainly heard you had gone west, and I have not seen you for ever so long. What are you doing here? Calling on Miss Lindel?"

Just then the door of the Lindel residence opened and Miss Annette appeared. But Miss Graham, passing on with a smile and a nod, did not see her.

"What was Miss Graham saying to you?" Miss Annette asked suspiciously.

"She was admiring your new car," the chauffeur replied with a touch of the hat.

"Ah, indeed?" with a searching look at the chauffeur.

"He is a real gentleman," she confided to her father the evening after the Graham episode. "I shouldn't wonder if he is one who has met with reverses."

"Shouldn't wonder," was the father's brief comment. "Hallam gave him a fine recommendation."

"Roland Hallam?" repeated Annette, and then suddenly she began to do some serious thinking.

"As a chauffeur," she said to herself, "I could be polite. As Mr. Hallam, masquerading—well, I think he needs a calling down and I believe I am the girl that can do it."

But the incident had this advantage in Roland's favor. It caused Annette to study her chauffeur more than she otherwise would have done, and then to compare him with other men. What was he here for? A wage? She resented being a party to it. The thought of this being one way of wooing never entered her practical head.

Her riddle was solved one day when Roland, tired of futile waiting, turned to her abruptly as she was seated in the auto before her father's office.

"Miss Lindel, will you be my wife? I am not entirely destitute. I once had a fortune and it is not absolutely necessary for me to be a chauffeur."

"Oh, indeed!" murmured Miss Annette demurely.

"And if you will be content with a modest flat—I have one on Ninety-third street."

"I adore flats."

"Then you will be my wife?"

"I confess I rather like you."

"There is no time like the present. I will take you while you are in the notion," said Roland as he spun the car around and headed it for the nearest church.

"But the license?" the princess asked.

"I have it here," the chauffeur replied.

"Ah!" in a tone and with a flash of the eye which boded no good to the confident man.

As they were leaving the church half an hour later Roland said:

"Now for the Ninety-third street flat."

"Yes, Roland, no doubt it is very nice, but why not go direct to your own home on Fifth avenue?"

Profound.

"Was Doctor Borum's address very learned?"

"I should say so! Some of his words were long enough for a dozen small boys to 'skin the cat' on."

Like Producing Like.

"That singer has a velvet voice."

"Yes; that's where she gets her title."

HER TRAIL OF TROUBLE

"I'm so glad to see you!" chirped
the hostess.

"Wait a minute!" cried the young woman visitor, lifting a warning hand as she stopped short on the threshold of the living room. "I haven't come in yet, please notice! Maybe you aren't going to have a chance to be glad to see me! How do I know but that your joy proceeds from an idea that now you have a sympathetic ear into which to pour your woes? First tell me—has the cook left or has anybody died or did the dressmaker spoil your new gown or has your husband eloped?"

"Why, the ideal!" protested the hostess. "As if Harry would do such a thing! And if she fixes the back seam the dress will be all right. What are you laughing at?"

"This isn't a laugh, it's a flood of tears," explained the young woman visitor. "I suppose I might just as well come in and sit down. It probably would be worse the next place I went.
A back seam doesn't sound so terribly tragic after all. Do you know, I think there must be something wrong with the moon—they say it mixes up things.
I never met such a bunch of calamities before in all my life!"

"Nothing has happened to me," said
the hostess.

"Well, something will," the young woman caller assured her, cheerfully.
"I'll wager the cook is packing up to leave this minute! Now, just for instance, consider the time I had getting here to see you today."

"I really started yesterday afternoon, but while I was dressing Milly Metcalf's maid next door called me up to say that Mrs. Metcalf had fallen downstairs and would I please come?
So I went, in a dressing gown, with part of my hair pinned up and the rest flying. Milly said the reason she sent for me was that she remembered my saying an uncle of mine fell off a barn when he was a boy and she thought I'd know what to do. She said she hadn't broken any bones that she could find,
but she felt queer, and in these days nobody could tell what would happen!"

"So I had to hold her hand for an hour and put liniment on her forehead, because she hadn't any cologne. Her head didn't ache, but it seemed to me that if there ever was a time when it should it is when you fall downstairs. I rubbed her forehead on general principles and got out her prettiest kimono and left her propped up on a couch with magazines and things and looking pale and interesting and ready to scare her husband half to death when he got home. Then I dashed back to complete my toilet."

"When I had half my puffs pinned on Grace Brownlight called. I hadn't seen her for a long time, so I went down and she pulled out her handkerchief the minute she saw me. It seemed that she had just left her husband and was suing for a divorce, and naturally there were no other interesting subjects in the world. I suppose if you leave your husband that does sort of occupy your mind to the exclusion of other things."

"I never did like Fred Brownlight, anyhow, so I congratulated Grace on her escape and let her tell me just how impossible Fred was. I had a pretty hard time of it, for if I said something slamming her husband Grace would bristle up resentfully and if I tried to excuse him she acted as if I were her bitter enemy. Instead of a friend, so the conversation drove me into a headache and I couldn't come over here after she left. Anyhow, we were having company for dinner and the cook spilled the soup at the last minute all over the salad, which stood ready on the kitchen table, so that gave me enough to occupy me for the rest of the day and evening."

"I was going to the opera tonight with Tom Grimmer and this morning he telephoned that the uncle who is going to leave him a lot of money some day had wired that he'd be in town and to meet him for the evening, so of course the opera engagement was off. We're all of us glad to help Tom out with his uncle, because Tom really needs the money."

"Then Alice Gaylord, who had asked ten of us to luncheon today, sent telephone messages around at 11 o'clock saying her mother's aunt who lives with them had unexpectedly died of apoplexy at the breakfast table. Later on I felt that I simply must get out of doors and shake off the gloom which oppressed me. I ordered my electric brought around and the boy from the garage ran into a lamp post and knocked all the varnish off the machine, and on the way here I saw a street car accident. So you can't wonder that I'm a little bit upset!"

"You poor dear!" said the hostess.
"I should say you had been—There's the postman!"

She came back reading a souvenir post card. "My second cousin, who has five children, writes from the country that they're on their way west and that they will stop with me for a few days," she announced. "And I've only one guest room and I expect to entertain the bridge club tomorrow night!"

"I told you so!" murmured the young woman visitor. "It's hit you, too!"

Taking Chances.

"I have sent that heiress another letter protesting my affection and asking her to marry me," said Count Fucash.
"You want to be careful how you put that sort of thing into the mails," replied the frank friend. "The post office department is getting mighty strict about anything that looks like a get-rich-quick enterprise."

Worth Weight in Gold.

Abingdon, Va.—Mrs. Jennie Mc-Call, of this place, says, "I had been troubled with female complaints, for over ten years. I could not walk or stand on my feet, and had been almost confined to the house, for a long time. I began to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and now I can walk anywhere I want to go. Cardui is worth its weight in gold." This is a high esteem on a plain, herb medicine, yet there are thousands of women who would gladly pay this price for a remedy to relieve their suffering. Cardui has helped others.
Why not you? Try it. Your druggist sells it, in $1. bottles

Oil stains on clothing should be covered with soap and washed with cold water before the garment is sent to the laundry. They may be removed with turpentine.

To clean bronze ornaments, first brush out the dust, then apply a very little sweet oil all over the article.
Polish first with a soft duster, finally with a wash leather.

Tarnished silver is easily cleaned with powdered whiting mixed to a paste with ammonia and water. Rub the paste on with one leather and have another leather to polish it off again.

Ink stains on silver or plated articles may be removed with a paste made of chloride of lime and water.
This should be left on for a little while and then washed off in warm water.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

TO MAKE VEGETABLE JAM

Takes Place of Different Vegetables
When Added to the Soup Stock.

One bushel of ripe, peeled tomatoes,
one quart of onions chopped fine, six okra pods sliced thin, 18 ears of corn cut from the cob, one teaspoonful of salt.

Cook okra, onions and corn separately from the tomatoes, as they take longer to boil and must be thoroughly done or the mixture will not keep well.

When these are cooked add the tomatoes, boil all together for one minute and can at once, boiling hot.

One can of this "jam" added to the soup stock takes the place of each one of the vegetables named, so you can see how much less troublesome and expensive the mixture is. Canned tomatoes and canned corn may be used,
and carrot cubes are a nice addition.
The above quantity will make about eight quarts.

MAKES DELICIOUS PEA SOUP

Simple Recipe Produces Concoction That Tastes Much Like Chicken Soup.

Soak over night one and a half cups split peas; four hours before dinner put on to cook in water (say about three pints), with quarter of a teaspoon of cooking soda. Cut up a small carrot into small dice shape, also onion and celery, add to soup about one hour before serving; also about 15 minutes before dinner add sliced potatoes. You can add one or more of the vegetables mentioned about, the more the better. Also you can put in the bone of any roast with little meat. Bone from roast pork is fine.
Add more water as needed, to make the right thickness. If for a large family put in two cups of split peas.
Last of all, out up fat bacon into dice, fry brown, add soup and serve. Also make soup from the last of roast pork, just the same as pea soup, leaving out the peas. It tastes like chicken soup.

VISITING AT JIM'S

"Yes, indeed, I had a grand time," said Jim's mother, "and Jim's wife, Merle, is just lovely. I guess Jim couldn't have found a prettier, smarter or pleasanter girl if he'd looked all over the country. And she's real capable, too. There's hardly anything she can't do."

"No, I didn't teach her any of my old recipes. She's been to cooking school and she knows the why and wherefore of everything that goes into the mixing bowl. She doesn't believe in my way of putting in enough flour to make a stiff batter and in seasoning to taste. Good housekeepers now-days know all about the chemistry and hygiene of cooking, Merle says. She declares that she won't keep a maid who doesn't go at her work scientifically. I could just hear my Amanda—who's been with me ever since Jim was a little boy—sniff if ever I inquired of her, as Merle did of her maid
one day, if she had sterilized the milk and used antiseptics when she was cleaning the refrigerator."

"Oh, yes, I enjoyed my visit so much. Jim's home is just beautiful, even if it is an apartment. When I first got there Merle showed me the guest chamber and said: 'You can dress here, mother, and sleep on the porch, if you want to.'"

"The porch!" I exclaimed, feeling kind of ruffled, for it didn't sound very lovely or hospitable to me to be told
I could sleep on the porch.

"Jim saw how I felt, and he spoke up and told me that they were very proud of having a sleeping porch—that lots of apartments didn't have any outdoor place for sleeping, and that people are getting to think that it's not healthy to sleep in the house."

"Well," I said, "I've got to be 67 years old without any serious illnesses contracted from sleeping in a bedroom and I guess I'll risk it."

"It does seem an awful shame for Jim to pay as much rent a year for those small rooms as it would take to buy a real nice little home in Kro-ville. But when I spoke to him about it he just laughed and said: 'That's all right, mother, but I couldn't earn enough money at my trade in Kro-ville to buy a chicken coop.'"

"You know, Jim's a lawyer, and we're a kind of peaceable neighborhood around here, aren't we? I suppose he is better off there in the city, but sometimes since I've been home I get to feeling mighty sorry for him and Merle, perched up there in the eighth story of that building."

"When I found out that children aren't allowed in that building I said to Merle: 'For heaven's sake, move to some place where you can raise a family if you want to.' Merle just smiled and said they were very comfortable where they were for the present."

"Merle is always smiling and polite, but she can be pretty firm when she feels like it. One day when I'd been round to the drug store on the next corner—that's as far as they'd let me go alone—and I came into the little reception hall all out of breath, Merle said: 'Mother, I do believe you walked all the way upstairs.'"

"Well, what of it?" I asked. "Aren't my legs meant for use?"

"They aren't meant to climb seven flights of stairs, and you mustn't do it again," she said. "Jim wouldn't like it."
"I had to smile at that, because Jim's seen me running up and down stairs and all over the place from dawn to dark ever since he used to toddle up to the attic chamber and help me make up the hired man's bed."

"But, mother," he said that night when Merle told him of my feat, as she called it, "there's no extra charge for the elevator service, and the boy who runs it will feel that he isn't giving satisfaction if he sees you walking up the stairs."

"Of course, after that I rode up and down every time, and the boy seemed so pleased—for he was always bowing and touching his cap—that one day, when Merle went out to her bridge club and I was kind of lonesome, I just took my knitting and rode up and down with him all afternoon, and we got real well acquainted. I asked him if he wouldn't like to come out here to Kroville and work for his living on a farm or at the blacksmith shop, instead of just idling his time away in that elevator. He said it didn't look very good to him, but he'd think it over."

"Society? Oh, yes, Merle has lots of society and she gave a stylish reception to me and, of course, I enjoyed it ever so much. Still, must say that I never was so taken aback in my life as I was when she began introducing me to them as 'Mum, Reynolds.' I who have been Mrs. Reynolds ever since I was 17!"

"Just plain Mrs. Reynolds, Jim Reynolds' mother from Kroville," I said to the first lady she introduced me to. Just as she was going to say something another one came and Merle said, very firm, indeed, 'My mother, Mme. Reynolds.'"

Then I saw there was no getting out of it. I'd just ha. to stand being 'Madam Reynolds' just as I had it stand having my hair puffed and wearing that lorgnette that Merle had Jim buy for me.

FOR KENTUCKY--Fair Thursday.

Monkey Whips a Dog

New Iberia, La., Feb. 4--A battle to the death between a gorilla and an English bulldog, in which the gorilla was the victor, was fought here with almost the entire male population of New Iberia as spectators. Much money was waged on the result, with the gorilla the favorite.

A pen twelve feet square and eight feet high, with seats on all sides, was arranged for the combat. Two minutes after the dog and gorilla were placed into pen the dog was dead. The gorilla caught the dog just as a man catches a base ball, then bit quickly through the dog's skull into the brain, broke its back and tore it to pieces.

Aeroplane Scout.

Washington, February 6--The War Department is to employ an aeroplane for scouting purposes along the Rio Grande. Conflicting reports of the operations of revolutionary bands said to be crossing and recrossing the Rio Grande have kept the Americans troops on wild goose chases. It is believed the use of an aeroplane scout will obviate this.

The War Department will use one of the new Wright aeroplanes, tested by Robert Collier of New York. The machine will be sent to Texas immediately.

Shooting in Trigg County.

Cadiz, Ky., Feb. 7--Tandy Ferguson, living in the western part of Trigg county, was shot and seriously wounded and John Larkins, an aged farmer about seventy years of age, has been arrested charged with the shooting. Larkins surrendered.

He said the shooting was the result of a difficulty about some woods.

His examining trial has been set for Thursday. Ferguson is in a Nashville hospital.

Woodmen in Madisonville.

At least fifteen hundred Woodmen will be in this city from all parts of Kentucky and from Southern Indiana, when the state convention is held here in March, beginning 14th for three days. The convention will be one of the biggest things that has ever occurred in Madisonville. There will be more people here than were ever known before.--Hustler.

Nortonville to Boom.

The Nortonville Coal & Coke Company is preparing and clearing ground for a park in the south side of Nortonville and will build fifty houses and a large hotel.

Misses Moore and Hogg are superintending the work, which has already begun.

Livery Change.

Mr. J. T. Stephens has bought out the livery firm of Gray & Gates, on Ninth street, and will continue the business at the old stand. Mr. Stephens has had long and successful experience in the livery business and will run an up-to-date establishment.

Mrs. Lewis Dead.

Mrs. Charles Lewis, formerly of this city, died in Dade City, Fla., a few days ago. She is survived by three children, one of them Mrs. G. L. Campbell, of this city.

E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me., boldly accuses Bucklen's Arnica Salve of stealing--the sting from burns or scalds--the pain from sores of all kinds--the distress from boils or piles. Miss Lucy Starling Writes
Of Her Experiences in Mission Field.

Nov. 17, 1910.

We have been so busy this week, with our closing exercises. We had them on the lawn, Tuesday afternoon, and served tea to the missionaries upstairs. There were several songs, two drills, and a recitation. My girls, twelve of them, had a drill with deep pink and green silk scarfs, and it was beautiful. We had made a good many things to sell, and they were on tables out on the lawn. There was a big crowd of the natives here, and they all seemed to have a good time.

Yesterday, the memorial services for the late king were held over in the city (this was a service by the natives, and many heathen customs were observed.) The men of our mission were invited, and all took floral offerings. Mrs. McGilvary asked me to come over and help her with theirs, so I spent most of the morning, working on that. She had sent to market, and gotten a lot of a white flower, that she thinks is stephanotis. I have never seen anything like it, but it grows in long fringed clusters, like white lilac, though it is a vine. From several withes of bamboo we made a foundation for a large wreath. Around this, we twisted a vine, that resembles our Southern smilax. I twisted it around, time and again, until we had a thick back ground, and then filled in with clusters of the white flower, and then at the bottom, tied streamers of white ribbon. I think in all my life I have never seen anything more beautiful. Dr. McGilvary said it was quite the handsomest piece they had at the services. When we were through, Miss Buck came over to look at it, and concluded she would like to send one from the school. So Mrs. M. gave her the flowers that were left, and I made a long narrow bouquet of them. First I twisted the vines together for a foundation and background, and then filled in with the white blossoms, and tied a white ribbon at the bottom. This was quite as pretty in its way, as the wreath, though not so large or pretentious. So I spent all my morning, making floral designs for a dead king.

While I am on the subject of flowers, I may as well tell you of some pretty bouquets I made last week. I was over at Dr. Campbell's about dark, and he said there was to be a wedding at his house that night, and he wished I would come over, and bring two or three of the girls as brides-maids. So I took our three pupil teachers over with me. I made them long, narrow bouquets of the pink Honolulu vine I wrote you about, and tied each with a pink scarf, with which the girls have been drilling. Our girls looked so sweet, and quite outshone the bride. Our school girls are so superior to the other girls of this country that they are looked up to by every body, and the missionaries like to show them off on occasions like this.

Miss Buck and I had planned to go up to the hill this afternoon, but it has been raining all day, so we have put it off, until tomorrow. I am glad of it, for there has been so much to do, I don't see how we could have ever gotten off. I hope to stay up all of next week, anyhow, and come down early the next week, to get ready for Annual Meeting, which begins Dec. 2nd. Mrs. Campbell is there now, and Mrs. Carr goes up tomorrow, so we are expecting to have quite a pleasant time. Dr. C. came down yesterday morning, and said it is lovely up there.

Yesterday was the forty-third anniversary of the coming of Dr. and Mrs. McGilvary to Chiang Mai, and last night a great crowd of the natives gave them sort of a surprise party; went over in a body, had speeches, and presented them with a handsome silver plate, on one end of which had been carved a picture of the old bridge, which is no longer in existence, and on the other end, the new bridge. Mrs. Harris is going to give the "golden wedding" party for them, on Dec. 5th, though the station offered to do it. I don't know just what Mrs. H.'s plans are but she can do it better than anyone else. They have a new piano coming up the river, and she has asked me to give Christmas music lessons. We are expecting the boats any day now, Grapes are not raised here. Mrs. McGilvary has a vine, but I don't think it has ever done much. She has just received some freesia bulbs from her brother, but I doubt if they ever amount to anything. She can make them grow, if anyone can.

Chiang Mai, Laos, Nov. 23, 1910. Here I am on the mountain, living the time of my life, and getting far. Miss Buck and I were getting ready to come up together, last Friday morning, when the doctor who had been called to see one of the girls who was unable to go home, found her quite sick. Miss Buck had some sewing to do this week, so I told her to go on up, and stay over Sunday, and I would come up this week. That night the girl's fever was 106 but next morning she was normal and seemed most well, when I left Monday morning. I never saw anything like the fever these people have, and they eat quinine like it was bread.

Miss Buck returned to the city on Tuesday, leaving me with two of our girls and Mrs. Carr's nurse, an old woman, in possession of this house. Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Carr and Aileen, are in the next house, and we have Thanksgiving dinner together tomorrow. They invited me to take my meals with them, but they eat very late in the morning, while I like to have early breakfast and go for a walk. I had to bring the girls along for company, anyhow, and thought I had just as well give them something to do. When I get upon the hill, I like to be independent, anyhow, and go and come as I like.

I love to sit on my porch in the late afternoon, and watch the green rice plains below while the pink and blue on the mountains beyond fade into deep violet, and the stars come out one by one. Nor is it less beautiful in the morning. Then the trees in the plain look like regiments of soldiers, while the clouds above envelop them like the white smoke of a battlefield. Every hour of the day has a beauty of its own, and every moment is a joy.

Today I tasted for the first time what is a favorite dish out here—stewed peanuts. I think they are first boiled in their skins—shells, I mean, then they are shelled, and stewed with a cream dressing. Try it sometime. Another dish I like for dessert is rice and coconut milk. The rice is soaked several hours, and then steamed with coconut milk, which is prepared by grating the coconut and pouring water over it, then strain. If you want it rich, and I like it better, let it stand over night, and skim off the cream. Sweeten a little if you like.

Tonight we killed an enormous scorpion while out walking. They sting with their tails and their sting is very dangerous, though I believe not fatal. When the men were bringing me up, on Monday, they threw a snake in our path, the first I have seen up here. If there were many, I wouldn't be quite so enthusiastic about this place.

This morning while taking a walk, I heard a great clattering and noise in the ravine, and creeping up, found the trees alive with monkeys. I sat down and kept very quiet, and watched them at play. One little fellow sitting between the forks of a high limb, matched me with as much interest as I did him. He would squat on his haunches, put his hands on his knees, and peer at me anxiously, as if to say "What is that anyhow?" I kept perfectly still, while he would go from one limb to another, and view me from every angle. I saw quite a dozen in the trees, and there were more to which I could not approach near enough to observe. Before this I have not seen more than two or three monkeys, all the time I have been in Siam.

NO USE FOR WALKING STICK

Average American, in Hustle of Life, Has No Time for Unnecessary Cargos.

Now that we are reminded of it, we realize that the great American people are seldom seen to possess a walking stick. "It's a small thing," writes an essayist in a morning paper, "the absence of the walking stick, but it belongs to the American motto, never, in the hustle of life, carry unnecessary cargo."

The idea is, of course, fantastic with the fantasy of transatlantic common sense. The hustle of life surely extends to travel in the case of a nation which would consider itself degraded if it spent longer than a week in a complete journey through Europe; and when Americans travel they are the last to deny themselves the luxury of an extra bit of luggage because it happens to be unnecessary. It is common knowledge that they go on loading the liner with trunks until the company's officials say "Stop," if only to collect so many more steamship and hotel labels to add to their already bloated store of these trophies.

No. The walking stick is a matter purely of personal choice. Most Americans chance to feel no need for a walking stick whereas we do. That is how the thing stands. When it comes to a walking stick the world must be considered individually. The physical walking is quite likely to have a taste for a gigantic club; the enormously powerful man who snaps his Sandow developer before breakfast as though it were a piece of cotton may select for a walking stick the thinnest shred of malacca that money can buy.—London Globe.

SPARE MINUTE FOR THE EYES

Nothing Gives Eyes Such Complete Rest as Habit of Closing Them Occasionally.

If you will spare a minute every half hour to the eyes they may be spared to you many years in consequence.

A well-known oculist declares nothing gives the eyes such complete rest as the habit of closing them occasionally for a minute or too. In threatened cases of eyestrain he has sometimes advised no other cure and the patient has recovered his normal sight.

Where one uses the eyes constantly, especially for close work, as the woman who does fine sewing, embroidery or painting, the relief to eyes of lifting them from the work and closing them while one slowly counts twenty-five cannot be overestimated. Another rest is to change the point of vision from time to time. Look away from what you are doing and gaze blankly into space. Do not attempt to concentrate on anything, merely look out of the window or into a distant corner of the room.

Do not begrudge the time for this eye resting. It is the best sort of investment you can make and will not take half as much time or money as visits to the oculist.

HORSELESS AGE HASN'T COME

Despite Development of the Automobile, Horses and Mules Are Far From Being Displaced.

Something has been said at one time and another, half in jest and half in earnest, about the coming of the horseless age, when the self-propelled vehicle will have done away with the horse and mule altogether, incidentally doing away at the same time with the horse fly. The automobile has made a wonderful development in the past ten years, but it has not displaced the horse, and indications are that it will not do so for some time to come. The horse and mule breeders are reported as looking forward to an unprecedented year in their business. According to an estimate based on the amount of business done up to the present time, which shows an increase of 11 percent over the same period last season, 67,000 animals are expected to pass through the Atlanta, Ga., market in the year ending next August. The money value will amount to $12,000,000, and it is significant that this is quite a figure when applied to the automobile business, while it is only a small matter in the total horse and mule business of the country. The automobile is "going some," in more senses than one, but it has not yet displaced the horse and the mule.

NOT ALARMED.

"Do you think the armor plate of our warships is sufficient?"
"Well, if it maintains the high quality of the samples we eat out of in this restaurant, I guess the nation's safe."

NOT THE KIND OF A CUR.

Several young men were standing before the desk in the Shirley hotel the other afternoon talking about dogs. One of them thought he'd bother the telephone girl by drawing her into discussion. She is pretty and good natured, but that afternoon she was very busy.

"Say, Bessie," said the young man, "what kind of dogs do you like?"
The girl found time to say, "Fox terriers."

"You do?"
"Yes, I'd just love to have a nice little fox terrier."

"Gee!" said the young man, "I'd like to be a little fox terrier."

The girl smiled. "You might not fill the bill," she said.

"Why not?" he asked.
"Because," she replied, after answering a call, "I'd want one bright enough to be taught something."—Denver Post.

IMPORTANCE OF EXAMPLE.

Every life is a profession of faith, and exercises an inevitable and silent propaganda. As far as lies in its power, it tends to transform the universe and humanity into its own image. Thus we have all a cure of souls. Every man is the center of perpetual radiation like a luminous body; he is, as it were, a beacon which entices a ship upon the rocks, if it does not guide it into port. Every man is a priest, even involuntarily; his conduct is an unspoken sermon, which is forever preaching to others; but there are priests of Baal, of Moloch, and of all the false gods. Such is the high importance of example.—Amiel's Journal.

HEINE'S "VIRULENT WISDOM."

Heine, that snake of the Hebrew paradise, a "smooth-tipped serpent," surely high inspired, was never inspired more truly by the serpent's genius of virulent wisdom than when he uttered, in a most characteristic hiss of sarcasm, describing Musset before he had reached middle age as "a young man with a very fine career—behind him." Never was there a truer, as assuredly there never was a crueler witticism.—Swinburne's Miscellanies.

BEST OPIATE FOR PATIENTS

Woman Says Game of Solitaire Played by Some One Else Soothes and Lulls Them to Sleep.

"Cards!" said the woman quoted by the New York Sun. "Don't mention cards to me. I have played 18 games of solitaire since one o'clock and am just about fagged out." I understand this was your afternoon at the hospital," remarked a card-playing acquaintance. "So it was," said the woman. "That is where I played solitaire. I did it to amuse the patients. In every hospital ward are several sick folks for whom a game of solitaire played at their bedside by somebody else is the best known opiate. It soothes and lulls them to sleep when nothing else will. They like cards when they are well; they would like a game of solitaire now if only they had strength enough to think and move the cards. But they are too weak to do anything except just to lie back and watch somebody else play. That interests them. Reading, talking and singing to them is all right once in a while, but when they really want to rest and be amused at the same time the doctor advises a game of solitaire."

SOME CURIOUS MISPRINTS

Errors by the Composer That Make the Author Say Things Quite Other Than Intended.

A sentimental novelist, describing his heroine as one who "always kept modestly in the background," was horrified to find it recorded in print that she "always kept modesty in the background."

A religious paper described the throat of a suicide as being "cut from year to year."

A curious error appeared in the City Press. In a notice of a special service held at St. Paul's cathedral, at which the anthem, "I Will Wash My Hands in Innocency," was sung by the choir, the compositor made the blunder that the anthem sung was, "I will Wash My Hands in Indecency."

In another paper appeared an advertisement for a plain cook and house maid, where "the gardener cleaned knives, boots and windows."

A SERENADE.

Luther Martin, attorney general of Maryland, was very fond of music, but could not distinguish one tune from another. After his defense of Aaron Burr for treason he was very unpopular in Baltimore. A crowd surrounded his house with a band of music playing "The Rognie's March." The old gentleman took it as a compliment, walked to the front and thanked them politely for their music. Not expecting such a reception, the mob stared and moved on, and his family, who were very much terrified, gave him a hint to slip away from the door.—Clark, "Eminent Lawyers."

PUNCTUAL AT SCHOOL.

A remarkable record is that of the four children of Mr. J. R. Dannatt, assistant overseer, of Newchurch, Isle of Wight, who have attended the local school for an aggregate of 32 years and one month without missing a single attendance. The record is as follows: Harry Dannatt, five years and five months; Charlie, ten years and five months; Nellie, seven years and ten months, and Ada, eight years and five months. The school is about two miles from the family's residence, and the distance traveled by the quartet in journeying to and from school exceeds 30,000 miles.

TELEGRAPHY IN OLDEN TIMES.

The invention of the telegraph is now traced back to 1655 and particularly mentioned in a little book, then written and published by the marquis of Worcester, inventor of the steam engine. He there gives it the name of "visual correspondence" and calls it his own invention. The process is getting possession of heights at convenient distances and by fireworks, in different forms, for different letters spelling the order or intelligence, from station to station.

ALL ALONG THE LINE.

"Our grocer isn't logical. When ice goes up he raises the price of meat."

"That's all right. He has to use ice to keep his meat chilled."

"But he also gives the price of blinding wood a substantial boost."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

NEVER LOST ITS NOVELTY

Why Thomas Bailey Aldrich So Highly Valued His Letter From Professor S. E. Morse.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale used to tell of an amusing letter sent by Thomas Bailey Aldrich to Prof. S. E. Morse, whose handwriting was very illegible, says Humors Life. According to Doctor Hale, Mr. Aldrich wrote as follows:

"My Dear Morse: It was very pleasing to get your recent letter. Perhaps I should have been more pleased had I been able to decipher the same. I have not been able to master any of it beyond the date, which I knew, and the signature, which I guessed at. There is a singular and perpetual charm in a letter of yours; it never grows old, it never loses its novelty. One can say to one's self every morning: 'Here's that letter of Morse's. I haven't read it yet. I think I'll take another shot at it today, and maybe I shall, in the course of a few months, be able to make out what it means by then.' It's that look like w's and those i's that have no eyebrows. Other letters are read and thrown away, but yours are kept forever—unread. One of them will last a reasonable man's lifetime. Admiringly yours, 'T. B. ALDRICH.'"

IT HAS COME TO THIS.

"What is an affinity, mother?"
"Hush, dear. Something not in the least proper."

ANCIENT CHURCH CUSTOMS.

In the age of witchcraft and sorcery it was believed that the fairies built the old kirks in Glasgow and that they had a right to them; so said Mr. W. B. Paterson, lecturing before the Old Glasgow club. The accommodation afforded the parishioners was very different from the present luxurious age. There were no pews in Scottish kirks before the reign of Charles I. The people had to bring their stools with them and those that did not do this simply sat down on the floor. For the evening service parishioners likewise brought candlesticks and candles. On the question of the separation of the sexes Mr. Paterson mentioned the interesting fact that there still existed a church in the city where this rule was observed.—London Globe.

CONVENIENT OBTUSENESS.

A little Boston boy who has had a German nurse and a German governess since the time he could first toddle, and who speaks German as fluently as he does English, misbehaved himself the other day and was soundly scolded by his grandfather, who speaks no language but that of Boston. When, finally, there was a pause in the grandparental eloquence the boy looked up calmly and said:

"Grandpa, I have not been able to understand you. You will have to speak to me in German."

FAITHFUL POSTAL WORKERS.

The government has no employees more faithful and none upon whose personal honesty more depends than the thousands of postmasters and postal clerks in our nearly 60,000 post offices. When one thinks of the countless letters in flimsy envelopes dropped into mail boxes and post offices, with no protection, except a two-cent stamp and a thin piece of paper, against the violation of secrets the exposure of which might ruin a business, one realizes how much depends on the personal integrity of those who handle the mails.

KNEW BETTER.

"Why do you waste your time lounging in the streets?" demanded the missionary-minded gentleman of the hobo. "Don't you know time is money?"

"Don't you believe it, boss," came the answer. "I've done time enough to be a millionaire."

BEAUTY OF THE PHILIPPINES.

There Are Lovely, Cool Plateaus—Also Marvels of Scenery.

It seems to me, says Hamilton Wright, in Leslie's Weekly, that the least appreciated feature of the Philippines is the diversity of climate. Though the Philippines are all in the tropics, yet frequently within a day's travel one will come upon strong climatic contrasts.

Whether you go to the lovely, cool mountain plateaus or down to the warmer cities of the sea level, you will find that though there are the changes of the seasons, still the climate from day to day varies little.
By dressing properly one does not feel the heat so much.

Manila, the hottest place in the Philippines, is often intensely warm in March, April and May. Yet prostrations never come as they do in New York in midsummer, and above all there are cool nights everywhere.

Perhaps no country in the world possesses so many scenic marvels as the Philippines; regions which, were they known, would attract tourists the world over. There is the beautiful Taal volcano, rising from the middle of a lake; there are the vast Morillas, not surpassed in beauty and grandeur by any ranges in the world; there are the wonderful mountain plateaus and valleys covered with seas of rich waving grass and bordered by forested hogbacks which project into them as capes project into the ocean.

Here wild deer and bear roam in great abundance, while occasional herds of wild carabao move clumsily over the ground. Perhaps for days in these regions one may not see a native. The island of Luzon alone is over 700 miles long; most all the population live along the sea coast; but were its wonderful resources developed, many times its present population might dwell
there in great prosperity.

THE GEARLESS CLOCK.

C. H. Bridgen, a Los Angeles watchmaker, has invented the first timepiece ever made to run and to keep time with a single wheel, and the wheel is not a gear wheel, but only a perforated disk, so that the clock might be called a gearless clock, says the Pacific Outlook.

A quarter of an inch ball rolling on two inclined plates takes the place of pendulum and gearing.
This steel ball rolls over two incline plates in just a minute, and rolls off the lower plate into the lower hole of the disk, at the same time releasing the disk, which is always under tension imparted to it by two ball weights suspended in towers.

The disk carries 30 balls on one side, and when released by the rolling of the ball from the lower plates against a locking device, the disk turns the space of one hole, or one minute, and brings the uppermost ball into position to roll on the top plate and begin its zigzag course down the two inclined plates as did the preceding ball. Each ball rolls over the plates once every 30 minutes.

WHY BRIAR WOOD IS SCARCE.

Worshippers of "My Lady Nicotine" who are thinking of replenishing their pipe rack, will do well not to tarry, for we hear that the price of the briar root is to be raised by 20 per cent, and this almost immediately. The news was confirmed by J. S. Weingott, a New York tobaccoist.

"The increase in the price of goods," explained Mr. Weingott, "is chiefly due to the advance in the price of labor and the recent strikes that took place on the continent, especially at St. Cloud, in France, which is the center of the trade in cheap briar root pipes. Briar, as it is known, or to give it its correct name, 'bruyere,' comes chiefly from Italy and from Corsica, and the late earthquake and volcanic eruptions have ruined hundreds of acres of plantations in the Campania and other parts of central and southern Italy. Hence the scarcity of the wood at the present time,
and, as an inevitable consequence,
the coming increase in price."

WATCHING THE JOB.

Miss Ascum—Did you say your husband was out looking for work?
Mrs. Loeffler—No, I believe he's out looking at work. There are some men digging a cellar down at the corner and he doesn't seem to get any further.

AN OLD COLONIAL CAKE

Recipe for Yellow Loaf Said to Have Come From Family of Washington.

An old colonial recipe for yellow loaf cake, said to come originally from the family of George Washington, calls for one cupful of butter, two and a half cupfuls of granulated sugar, six eggs, a cupful of cream or rich milk, one even teaspoonful of acid, two of cream of tartar, four cupfuls of pastry flour and one cupful of seeded raisins. Cream the butter and sugar, then stir in the yolks of the eggs. Add the cream of tartar to the flour and sift them together several times. Add the soda to the milk and stir the mixture into the batter, sugar and yolks. Then beat the whole into the flour and cream of tartar. When smooth add the raisins and finally fold the whites of the eggs, whipped to a very stiff froth, through the batter. Do not stir the cake after the whites are added. Butter a large tube pan and fill it half full. After it has baked and become cold, let it with a heavy snow white icing that will contrast prettily with the yellow of the cake. Citron sliced in thin strips may be used instead of raisins or in combinations with them.

This confection may be used as a birthday cake and is very attractive for the purpose.

TURPENTINE MOST USEFUL

All Sorts of Ways in Which It Can Be Used About the House.

Turpentine can be used in all sorts of ways. Here are some:

Spirits of turpentine will restore the brilliancy to patent leather. Bags and boots rubbed with a rag moistened with it look almost like new.

A few drops in boxes and cupboards will keep moths away.

If a few drops are added to starch,
it will prevent the iron from sticking.

A flannel dipped in hot water sprinkled with turpentine and laid on the part affected will often relieve lam-bago and rheumatism.

Turpentine mixed with beeswax makes a good floor polish.

A little added to the steeping water (a tablespoonful to a gallon) makes clothes beautifully white.

HANDY KITCHEN CABINET

A Straining Bag.

A flannel straining bag is a necessity in any kitchen where jellies are prepared. Instead of investing in an expensive strainer, an excellent substitute may be made of ordinary flannel, which should first of all be hemmed neatly and then soaked and wrung out in boiling water. When it is used, it should be laid inside a large bowl and the fruit or liquid jelly poured into it. The four ends of the flannel should then be tied together and a stick passed through the knots. The bag can then be suspended over a bowl by means of a couple of chains and left to drain slowly until all the liquid has passed through. A blanket should be thrown over the top in cold weather, so as to prevent the jelly from setting too soon.

Cream Carrot Soup.

Wash, scrape and cut in slices enough carrots to fill a pint bowl. Boil these in a quart of water, slightly salted, till soft enough to rub through a sieve with the potato masher. Mix together in a thick saucepan two tablespoons of flour and one tablespoon of butter, stirring with a wooden spoon till they begin to bubble.
Gradually stir into this a pint of milk and the carrot pulp. Add hot water to make one quart of soup. Put the yolk of one egg and a tablespoon of chopped parsley together in the turkey, turn in the hot soup, stir gently, and serve at once.

Orange Marmalade.

One each orange, lemon and grape fruit. Shave very thin, rejecting seeds and cores. Use all peel and pulp.
Measure, add three times the amount of water and let stand in an earthen dish over night. Next morning boil ten minutes, let stand another night, in morning add an equal amount sugar and boil until it jellies. The jelly should be amber colored and strips well defined. This makes twelve glasses.

Cream Sponge.

Dissolve 1 1/4 teaspoons of granulated gelatine into 2 tablespoons of cold water. Beat 1 pint of cream until stiff, fold in 1/4 cup powdered sugar. Add the gelatine and beat a few minutes until well mixed. Flavor with a teaspoon of vanilla. Turn into a mold and let it get very cold.

Baked Apples With Nuts.

Core the apples and fill the cavities with one-fourth cup walnut meats cut in small pieces, with a little sugar, and bake in the oven.

The Knock-out Blow

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters.
From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but to the stomach we are utterly indifferent, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out.

Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol—pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

It's foolish and often dangerous to experiment with new or but slightly tested medicines—sometimes urged upon the afflicted as "just as good" or better than "Golden Medical Discovery." The dishonest dealer sometimes insists that he knows what the proffered substitute is made of, but you don't and it is decidedly for your interest that you should know what you are taking into your stomach and system expecting it to act as a curative. To him its only a difference of profit. Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If not promptly supplied trade elsewhere.

Austrian Goulash Never Dreamt of in Ancient Gourmand's Philosophy, Nor East Indian Salmon and Oriental Meat Balls.

Austrian Goulash.—Boil a calf's head in salted water until tender; then take the meat from the bones. Fry two fair sized onions and two white potatoes, cut in dice pieces; stir in a scant tablespoonful of flour and some of the water in which the head has been cooked. Let these boil up, then add the head meat, one teaspoonful of paprika, a full teaspoonful of butter and salt to taste; let all cook together 15 minutes and serve with dry boiled rice.

Salmon, East India Style.—Slice one pound of hulled salmon. Then heat one ounce of butter in a stewpan; add two small onions chopped fine, one ounce of coconut and two hard boiled eggs chopped well. Let these cook a few minutes, then put in half a pint of cream, letting this boil up once. Put in the fish, one teaspoonful of curry powder, paprika and salt to taste. As curry is already hot, be careful and stir in two tablespoonfuls of hulled rice. Serve very hot on toast.

Oriental Meat Balls.—Chop one pound of raw beef; season with salt, pepper, a little fresh celery, onion and parsley chopped fine. Mix in two beaten eggs, one-half cup of stale bread together. Roll into balls, sprinkle these with flour and cook in hot butter or beef drippings until done. Serve on a bed of hulled rice and pour over all a highly seasoned tomato sauce.

Jewish Soup.—This is made with dumplings which are called crebchen. Beat three eggs with two tablespoonfuls of water and a pinch of salt; add enough flour to make a stiff dough. Work well with flour, and roll out very thin; then fold double, cut into square pieces and fill each with cooked minced veal or chicken. Sprinkle the filling with chopped parsley and bits of butter; put in the dough squares and fold edges securely. Boil up some good soup stock and when this is ready put in the dumplings and boil till done. Serve all together.

Curried Eggs.—Cut hard-boiled eggs in halves; then fry a small onion and one cooking apple, chopped, in butter; add toasted bread crumbs, cream, curry powder and salt to taste. Then put in the eggs and let them get hot. Serve with fried bits of bread and a parsley garnish.

Veal Souffle, French Style.—Heat two tablespoonfuls of butter and mix in two tablespoonfuls of flour, stirring until smooth; add a cup of milk and let it boil up. Then put in minced veal, parsley, salt, pepper and nutmeg to taste. Then stir in the yolks of two eggs. Remove from fire and let cool. Beat the whites of eggs to a stiff froth and put them with the meat. Then put the mixture in a buttered dish and bake 20 minutes. Serve piping hot.

Italian Risotto.—Boil one cup of rice in plenty of salted water until soft. Grate Parmesan cheese and cover the rice with it. Let the dish steam in the oven five minutes, then pour over highly-seasoned tomato sauce and serve with fried veal chops.

Sago Pudding, Baked.

One and one-half pints of milk, three tablespoonfuls of sago, rind of half a lemon, three ounces of sugar, four eggs, 1½ ounces of butter, grated nutmeg, good pie crust. Put the milk and lemon rind into a stewpan by the until the milk is flavored. Strain, mix with it the sago and sugar, and simmer for 15 minutes. Let the mixture cool a little, and stir into it the eggs well beaten and the butter. Line the edges of a pie dish with a good crust, pour in the pudding and bake from 45 minutes to one hour, or more, if the oven is slow. Serve with stewed prunes.

Indian Pudding.

Take three pints of milk, of which two are scalded, adding three heaping teaspoonfuls of Indian meal wet in a little of the cold milk. Boil a minute or two before removing from fire, then add two-thirds cup molasses, two-thirds cup sugar, two eggs, a little cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake slowly, four or five hours. When it has been in the oven about an hour, stir in the remainder of the cold milk and one-half cup pearl tapioca, previously soaked in a little cold water. To be served with cream, either plain or whipped.

Puffed Eggs.

Have hot fat an inch or more in depth. Carefully break required number of eggs in a bowl, season well with salt and pepper. Hold edge of bowl close to fat and slip in the eggs. They will puff up immediately. When brown on the bottom turn the eggs with a skimmer, and let them drain before sliding on platter. A frying basket may be used by setting it upon the bottom of the skillet and proceeding as above, except that the eggs are taken up by merely lifting the basket.

Drying Celery Tops.

Celery is some times very scarce, and a very good plan is to save the tops of the celery this time of the year.

Cut and wash the nice leaves, tie with a cord and hang up to dry. When dry put them in a paper bag and save for seasoning soups or dressings.

CLEAN THE CLOSETS REGULAR

Apply White Paint With Stiff Brush
—For Light Use Reflection
From Mirror.

A little time should be taken every cleaning day in inspecting the closets about the house that are slightly or not at all used; generally there is one under the upper stairs or over the cellar steps.

These closets are in most instances so dark that it is almost impossible to tell whether they are dirty or not, but it is not hard to tell if they need a cleaning when you try to remember the last time you gave them a thorough cleaning.

These forgotten closets are breeders of disease, and they are often to be found in the very best managed households, for few housewives and still fewer maids will think of giving these dark enclosures the cleaning they need as regularly as they do the other rooms of the house.

The dust might appear invisible when you are not in search of it, but if you flash a light into the low ceilinged apartment it does not take much imagination to picture how amazed you will be.

A remedy for this is a can of white paint and a good stout brush. Apply after a thorough cleaning out of all and wall paper, if there is any.

For light while cleaning the place the reflection from a mirror will serve, but there will be no blind attempt to find your overshoes the next rainy day if you give that closet two good coats of white lead.

DOES AWAY WITH SCORCHING

Simple Culinary Apparatus That is Guaranteed to Prevent Food
From Burning.

The most careful of cooks with the many different vials in the course of preparation under her eyes will slip up occasionally and relax her vigilance for a second when some one of the articles on the stove is touched by the finger of fire. Scorching food is one of the most inexcusable offenses of the cook. A simple piece of apparatus to prevent this mishap has been devised. It consists of a metal affair resembling an inverted plate, generously perforated with small holes. This rests on the bottom of the kettle and effectually prevents the contents from coming into contact with the overheated bottom.

Cornmeal and Meat Loaf.

Get two pounds of soup meat, with the soup bone, and after the soup has been made remove all the meat and chop it fine. Then take about a quart of the soup and reduce it slightly with hot water, then add sufficient cornmeal to make a rather thick mush. Cook the meal thoroughly, and when almost done, add the chopped meat, with a little salt, pepper and two teaspoonfuls of grated onion. Stir the mixture frequently to prevent catching or burning. When done, pour in a pan to harden. Cut in slices and serve like a beef loaf.

Little Aids to Housekeeping.

Lime and oil and vinegar, mixed in equal parts, will do wonders in cleaning furniture.

Silver inkstands stained with ink may be cleaned by applying a little chloride of lime with water.

Powder articles should be washed in hot water with the fine silver sand and then polished with leather.

If a skirt or any other article has been scorched in ironing lay it where the sun will fall directly on it.

Corn Fritters.

Sift and cut the corn from four large, firm ears; mix a thin batter of one cup milk, one egg, two-thirds cup sifted flour and one teaspoon of yeast powder and a little salt; stir the corn into this batter, and fry a nice brown in drippings or butter; butter is best. Serve very hot.

Corned Beef.

Heat the meat in cold water. When at the boiling point drain, add fresh boiling water and keep the pot at the side of the fire where the water will barely bubble. One hour for each pound is none too much and a longer time will not be a disadvantage.

The Boston Pot Roast.

Two and one-half pounds steak cut in cubes, one carrot cut thin, one onion, one can of peas, one pint of tomatoes, one quarter of a cup of tapioca, two teaspoonfuls of salt, one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper, five cloves, dash of nutmeg; put in bean pot, cover and bake eight hours.

Lettuce and Pepper Salad.

For lettuce and pepper salad shred about half of a seeded sweet red pepper and sprinkle it over the dressed lettuce.

PRESIDENT GARY

Of The Tri-State Lumberman's Association Talks On Forestry.

At the final session of the Tri-State Lumberman's Association, Thursday, George E. Gary, of Hopkinsville was elected president; Carl Bosworth of Vincennes, vice president, and Harry Massie of Evansville, secretary and treasurer, Fred Alloway of Sturgis, Ky., Marion Sturman of Mt. Carmel, Ill., and William Partenheimer, of Huntingburg, were elected directors to serve the coming year.

SPEECH BY PRESIDENT GARY.

In his speech on Conservation, Mr. Gary said, in part:

"The axe has been a far more destructive weapon to this country than the rifle or the sword. Mr. Roosevelt, if he never does anything more, has left his impress upon his generation, but he hasn't stopped the turpentine of pine trees, as he was asked to do. More than that, he has acquired an unenviable fame by chopping down trees at Oyster Bay, a ruinous example to be setting the deforesting idiots of this day and generation.

"The preservation of our forests is of such vast national importance as to be beyond the reach of estimate. So blind are we to this profound problem, that it would seem as if the very trees would cry out. It involves even our national standing, our national beauty, even our national salvation. Forestry should be made a nation wide study. The question should be kept perpetually before our people. Tree craft, and tree culture should be made a branch of education, and find a place in every curriculum. The government should make its study compulsory and circulate a journal devoted to the propagation of a knowledge of this great subject and to the creation of an interest in it.

"So vital is this question and so imminent the calamity, that remedies that seem far-fetched and even fanatical come in a brief span to take on the hue of moderation and conservatism.

"Speaking of woodcraft, I once took occasion to remark that the first woodcraft of which we had any historical account, was Noah's ark—which craft no doubt contained an ass and the spirit of that deluvian quadruped has apparently brooded over woodcraft ever since. Not only in the ruthless waste of standing timber, but in the butchery of it in its manufacture. How many of these long-eared specimens can be found today on the passenger list of the ship of state, I would not undertake to say.

WOULD ENCOURAGE TREE PLANTING.

"The steps being taken by the government to acquire and preserve large timbered domains are most encouraging, a grateful rift in the cloud that overshadows this problem. Can it not go further? And here-with I offer another of those fanatical suggestions: Let the government, national and state, encourage in every possible way re-forestation. There are millions of acres of timber land cut over annually. Suppose the respective states where timber abounds, take hold of these waste lands and protect the growth of young timber thereon, not by acquisition, but by exemption from taxation, as long as they are devoted to reforestation. It seems to me that this, with attention to detail could be made entirely practicable and thus millions of acres of land almost worthless for cultivation become valuable to its owners and add vast territories to our timber domain.

"How many acres of white pine lands in the states of Michigan and Wisconsin, largely worthless swamps since the timber was cut away, could thus be made a rich asset to their owners. Is this chimerical in the face of the fact that they have been for centuries cultivating poplar trees in France? In the vast deforested acres of yellow pine timber land in the South, that is so barren as to starve even a nigger and his mule, the status of the national government would do well to reforester even if they had to acquire them."

Attack Like Tigers.

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt-rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blood purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Calif., "I have ever found." They make rich, red blood, strong nerves and build up your health. Try them. 50c at all druggists.

PATENT SECURED

And W. R. Bowles Will Now Have Easy Sailing.

Mr. W. R. Bowles has secured his patent on his electric lamp box for use in photograph work, which is destined to revolution certain classes of the photograph business. He is constantly discovering new uses for it and undoubtedly has a fortune in store for his invention.

Thirty Years Together.

Thirty years of association—think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—or the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and its the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for lagrippe, asthma, hay-fever, croup, quinsy or sore lungs. Price 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.
